Farrah N. Khan Appointed Managing Director of COR Community Development Corporation
Irvine, CA - January 8, 2025 - COR Community Development Corporation is proud to announce the appointment of Farrah N. Khan as its new Managing Director. With an impressive background in community development, public service, and organizational leadership, Khan is poised to bring innovative strategies and compassionate leadership to COR's mission of empowering underserved individuals and communities.

Farrah N. Khan has dedicated her career to creating inclusive spaces, fostering economic growth, and advocating for equitable opportunities. Her recent leadership role as mayor (2020-2024) of the city of Irvine Ca. demonstrated her ability to lead large-scale initiatives addressing housing, education, and social services—key pillars of COR's mission. Under her guidance, COR Community Development Corporation aims to deepen its impact, expand its programs, build new relationships, and strengthen partnerships with stakeholders.

Farrah N. Khan made history as the first Muslim woman of color elected to the Irvine City Council and as mayor of a large city in the United States. Before her political career, she worked as a regulatory manager for a biotech company, gained experience as a small business owner, and served as the Executive Director of the Newport Mesa-Irvine Interfaith Council.

As Managing Director, Khan will oversee strategic direction, program implementation, and community outreach efforts. Her leadership will be instrumental in advancing COR's Community Development Corporation's commitment to addressing systemic barriers and providing resources that enable individuals to achieve self-sufficiency and success.
